

PALM BEACH LIKE AN EASTER PARADE

Many Striking Costumes Worn on the Sands by Women From Northern Cities.

SABLES AND PARASOLS
Trimmings in Wide Variety—Mrs. Irving H. Chase Among the Arrivals.

Special Dispatch to THE SUN AND NEW YORK HERALD.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 8.—The bathing beach this morning was as gay as a city street on an Easter morning, and was so large that an "S. R. C." sign would have been quite in order.

One of the smartest costumes was that of Mrs. William Lowe Rice of New York. She wore a one piece frock of white silk jersey, straight and simple, with a wide white band at the bottom and a wide white band at the top.

Mrs. Charles S. Pillsbury of Minneapolis, Minn., wore a tailored suit of white silk with a wide white band at the bottom and a wide white band at the top.

Among the many arrivals to-day was Mrs. Irving H. Chase, of Waterbury, Conn., who is at the Breakers Hotel.

AIR CHILLY AT MIAMI.

Few Swimmers Venture Into the Surf.
MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 8.—This morning found the largest crowd of the season on the bathing beach.

Mr. and Mrs. William P. Hulbert were among the few who braved the dip. She wore a plain black satin bathing suit with a close fitting cap of green.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Scribner have gone to Santa Barbara, Cal., for six weeks.

MISS RITA STURGIS ENGAGED.

Will Be Wed in Summer to Mr. Nigel Cholmeley-Jones.

Announcement has been made by Mrs. Robert Sturgis of the 121 East "Thirty-eighth" street of the engagement of his daughter, Miss Rita Sturgis, to Mr. Nigel Cholmeley-Jones of this city.

Notes of Drama and Music.

George C. Tyler will produce in Boston, Mass., on next Monday a play titled by Edward Childs Carpenter.

Charity Ball for Knights of Columbus

Women's Auxiliary Arranging Dance for Next Monday Night in the Astor.

To enable themselves to extend their work among the ill and needy the Knights of Columbus have arranged a ball to be held in the Hotel Astor on next Monday night.

At the head of the women's auxiliary, which is in charge of arrangements, is Miss Elizabeth Marbury.

JOSEPH HEFMANN, Pianist, SHARES HIS MOODS

From the Tempestuous He Turns to Mellowed Sweetness and Shooting Stars.

Joseph Heffmann, pianist, gave his second recital of the present season yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall.

There were 23,000 members of the Knights of Columbus in New York City, he said. "When a member is ill he is privileged to go to a hospital and tell the authorities that this organization will pay his bill, providing, of course, that he is unable to do so."

Mr. Heffmann was apparently in a cautious mood at the beginning of his recital and in the "Waldstein" sonata of Beethoven, the opening number, there were some audacious moments and some sharp emphatic attacks on the lower notes of the instrument.

DR. E. E. SOUTHARD DIES OF PNEUMONIA
Was Neuro-Pathologist of Harvard Medical School.

Elmer Ernest Southard, M. D., one of the leading neuro-pathologists of the country and a member of the faculty of Harvard University medical school, died in the Prince George Hotel yesterday.

He was stricken with pneumonia Thursday night. He had come to this city from Boston a week ago to address the members of the New York Academy of Medicine and the Society of Neurology of New York. His lectures were delivered Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

During the war Dr. Southard held the important post of chairman of the Committee on Psychiatry and Neurology of the National Research Council. He held the rank of major in the chemical warfare branch of the medical establishment. His ability in the treatment of mental diseases proved of great value when it became necessary to provide care for soldiers who had been unbalanced temporarily by the strain of fighting.

Dr. Southard was born in Boston July 23, 1876. He was graduated from Harvard and received his degree of doctor of medicine from the School of Medicine in 1901. He went to Germany for post-graduate work, studying at the Senckenberg Institute, at Frankfurt, and Heidelberg University. Upon his return to this country he became an interne and assistant in pathology and finally assistant visiting pathologist in the Boston City Hospital. He became identified with the Harvard medical college in 1904.

Dr. Southard's contributions to medical literature were many. Up to the time of his death he was assistant editor of the Journal of Mental and Nervous Diseases, the Psychiatric Bulletin and the Journal of Clinical and Laboratory Medicine.

He is survived by his wife, Dr. Mabel Austin Southard, a lecturer at Wellesley College; a daughter, Anne; two sons, Austin and Orway; and his mother, Mrs. Martin Southard, of Boston.
